Calling all tradies! Radio Hauraki Trade Wars is back for 2022

The ultimate battle of New Zealand tradies returns this year, with entries now open for tradesmen and women from across the country to take on 2021 reigning champions – the electricians, in Radio Hauraki’s Trade Wars.

Touted as the biggest cash job ever, with $10,000 up for grabs, the 1 July live streamed event will see seven pairs of tradies competing in three of the most competitive sports on earth: darts, pool, and Kiwipong.

Hosted in central Auckland at the Trade Wars Arena with live commentary from The Alternative Commentary Collective, this year’s competition will see last year’s champions “The Sparkies” Zach and Sam Inglis back from Christchurch to defend their ‘Ultimate Trade’ title.

Radio Hauraki is calling for entries from tradies across the country. Any competitors outside of Auckland who are selected to compete will be flown up to Auckland.

Entries are open now via Radio Hauraki’s Trade Wars page, and close Friday 17 June.

So if you think you’ve got what it takes, grab a workmate and register now!
