Webinar content will explain the health and safety guidelines for managing the risks of COVID-19 transmission including the Construction Industry Standard, the Commercial and Residential Protocols and the specific 'tools' required by trades, individual businesses and specific sites.

The webinar will be presented by Chris Alderson, Chief Executive of Construction Health and Safety New Zealand (CHASNZ). CHASNZ is the peak organisation representing health and safety in the NZ construction industry and has been established with support of industry, clients and government to set, monitor and promote consistent standards. CHASNZ has drawn on experiences of businesses abroad and in NZ operating in the COVID -19 environment to establish the industry Standard and have collaborated with industry stakeholders to produce the sector Protocols.

Chris Alderson is one of New Zealand's leading senior executives in health and safety and business transformation, with experience across some of New Zealand's leading organisations including PWC, Fonterra and Air New Zealand.
